Preparing Yourself for a Disruptive Future

We are living in an era of accelerating change. What makes this particularly difficult is that different kinds of things are changing, and in different ways. For leaders to thrive in this disruptive world, they need to learn new things, faster, and in new ways, starting today. This workshop uses disruptive experiences, vivid examples, and provocative ideas to challenge leaders to build new skills and new mindsets that will enable them to thrive in a disruptive future.

> Who Should Attend

This experiential workshop is ideal for leaders who are ready to step up and lead their organizations through disruption, complexity, and accelerating change, and for today's successful leaders who know what got them here won't get them there.

> What Participants Will Learn

Participating leaders will:

- Explore the new landscape of complexity, change and disruption and how it impacts their role as leaders
- Examine the exponential technologies that are driving the most disruptive changes in organizations
- Examine five critical competencies for leading in the future and practical steps they can take to develop them
- Cultivate a more intentional mindset to manage their time, attention, and resources to optimize sustainable long-term performance
- Develop strategies to cultivate an agile, learning mindset for themselves and their teams
- Learn three approaches to making high-quality, high-velocity decisions in the face of ambiguity and uncertainty
- Learn how to build a thriving, inclusive environment for diverse teams and individuals
- Define their personal leadership development goals and a concrete action plan for dealing with a disruptive future
